We will be showing three short films from Cheryl Green, co-creator of Who Am I to Stop It and many other disability-focused projects.

After Fairview: The 3rd prize winner in the 2018 Free Our People Film Contest, this short portrait explores the art and work of disability rights activist Linda Gheer. Born with disabilities in the 1950s, she has navigated institutionalization at Fairview Training Center and group homes, and she now lives independently in the community.

Kris's Story: Kris Haas shows her art in the Pearl District's J. Pepin Art Gallery, a gallery for artists with mental illness, while facing an eviction notice.

Brandon's Story: Brandon Scarth re-examines his faith and moves out of a structured living facility and into the community.

Note: Kris's Story and Brandon's Story are excerpted from the 82-minute version of Who Am I To Stop It, directed by Cheryl Green and Cynthia Lopez.
